The right choice for you ... and for your business.

The communication methods are your personal choice. They must correspond to the requirements of your business. These requirements will vary, depending on whether your employees are working in the office, at home or while travelling. In making your decision in favour of IP Office, you can therefore choose from a wide range of communication tools and applications to increase productivity. You can decide on a simple telephone or on a unit with all possible extras. Connect our IP telephone directly to your office LAN or use it at home with all the functions that are available to you in the office. With the Avaya Phone Manager software, you can change the screen of your computers into a telephone and, thanks to our wireless solutions, you can also move about freely within your office. The goal of all our IP Office functions is to arrange your communications in a simple and cost-effective way. Let T&N Telekom & Netzwerk AG draw up a selection of tools and applications that meet your requirements.

Your contact person at T&N is Herbert Weiss, Product Manager IP Office. Herbert Weiss is a certified IP Office specialist and has many years of practical experience in the telecommunications sector. He is always happy to advise our customers competently and comprehensively on all matters.
